Market Outlook

For

March 2026

Buy on the sound of cannons, sell on the sound of trumpets

The global equity markets displayed a mixed performance in February 2026, with regional divergences becoming more pronounced. US equities remained under pressure, dragged down by weakness in mega-cap technology, which continued to face investor concerns around escalating AI-related capex cycles and their impact on return on invested capital. This sell-off was broad within the large-cap technology cohort, with 6 out of the mag-7 names declining through the month, reflecting heightened anxiety over AI disruption risks and the sustainability of elevated spending commitments. On the other hand, European and select Asian equity markets continued to move higher, supported by broadening earnings expectations, rotation into value and cyclicals, and improving macro signals across key economies.

While global equity markets were already jittery through February, geopolitical tensions escalated late in the month, further unsettling investor sentiment. The co-ordinated U.S. and Israeli military strikes against Iran, intensified global risk aversion and reinforced a broad risk-off shift across markets. This escalation prompted investors to seek safety, driving traditional havens higher. Gold continued its strong upward trajectory, rising more than 10% and marking a seventh consecutive monthly gain, while the US Dollar Index also strengthened as capital rotated into defensive positioning. At the same time, oil prices climbed, with Brent extending the gains made earlier in the year. The move higher was driven by heightened geopolitical uncertainty in the Middle East and concerns about potential supply disruptions, pushing Brent crude toward the mid $80s per barrel range after building on January's strong gains.

Up until geopolitical tensions escalated and further weighed on sentiment, Indian market performance remained relatively subdued. The defining event of the month was an unprecedented collapse in the IT sector, with five of India's largest technology companies declining 15–22% MoM, triggered by Anthropic's launch of Claude Cowork and associated automation tools—an announcement that sparked global "SaaSpocalypse"-style fears over AI-driven disruption. The Nifty IT index registered its worse monthly decline of 20% in nearly two decades.

In contrast, PSU banks stood out as clear outperformers, buoyed by strong earnings momentum and aided by a sectoral rotation away from technology and toward financials, metals, defence, and other public-sector lenders. The broader market also fared better, with both the mid-cap and small-cap indices closing the month firmly in the green.

February also featured three major macro policy events within its first week, making it arguably the most consequential policy month of the year. In our view, the Union Budget 2026 marked another step toward stimulating growth while maintaining fiscal discipline. The government targeted a fiscal deficit of 4.3% for FY27E, compared with 4.4% for FY26E—implying calibrated consolidation while ensuring ongoing support to the economy. Capital expenditure was projected to rise by 11.5%, with increased allocations toward sunrise sectors such as semiconductors (₹40,000 crore) and defence (up nearly 20%), signalling the government's continued focus on infrastructure, self-reliance and strategic capability building. Tax-revenue assumptions for FY27E were kept conservative, reflecting prudence in fiscal planning.

Additionally, the India–US trade agreement reduced effective tariffs from 50% to 18% by removing the Russian-oil surcharge, helping ease import-cost pressures. The RBI maintained its policy rate at 5.25% after cumulative cuts of 125 bps, reaffirmed its stance on proactive liquidity management with a system surplus of approximately ₹75,000 crore, and revised FY26 GDP growth upward to 7.4%. While policy-neutral overall, this backdrop provided stability and a floor for rate-sensitive sectors through what was otherwise a turbulent month.

Equity market outlook

We remain constructive on Indian equities, as highlighted in our earlier factsheets, supported by a compelling combination of fiscal, monetary, and regulatory easing that is poised to drive growth. The recently concluded trade agreement with the US, together with a more optimistic earnings outlook, is expected to reinforce domestic investor sentiment and has already helped moderate FII selling pressure. Although ongoing geopolitical tensions continue to elevate market volatility, we view these risks as largely short-term and believe they provide opportunities for selective, fundamentals-driven investments.

At the same time, India's resilient macroeconomic backdrop continues to offer a strong foundation for equity performance. We expect broader markets to participate more meaningfully in CY26, following nearly 15 months of relative underperformance. In our view, this could be a period where mid-cap and small-cap segments outperform, reinforcing our preference for a multicap strategy. Our investment approach will remain firmly bottom-up and anchored in our GARP (Growth at a Reasonable Price) philosophy, ensuring disciplined stock selection while capturing opportunities across market capitalisations.

Fixed Income overview:

Bond markets have seen selling pressure, weighed down by the excess supply concerns post the higher-than-expected announcement of gross borrowing of Rs17.2 tn. Also, sentiment further deteriorated post upward revision of the GDP and inflation reading by the MPC in its Feb meeting dashed hopes of any scope for further rate cuts in this cycle. There was no additional measure announced for the liquidity in the MPC meeting.

However, the announcement of the India-US trade deal, switches conducted of the RBI holdings and market securities maturing in FY 2027 reducing gross supply and secondary OMO purchases from RBI turned sentiments positive.

The US-Israeli attack on Iran has destabilized the Middle East, led to spike in energy prices. Its impact on India inflation and CAD will be critical.

	Feb-26	Jan-26	Dec-25
IGB 10 Yr	6.66	6.70	6.59
IGB 5 Yr	6.28	6.41	6.31
IGB 30 Yr	7.34	7.36	7.27
US 10 Yr	3.94	4.24	4.17

Fixed Income Outlook:

There is heavy supply of SDL still hitting the market but with RBI coming back in the secondary market and G-sec auctions taking a pause for 3 weeks, market is expected to remain supportive in short term. Also, going ahead with demand supply situation evolving favourably we remain constructive on bond market. Risk to our view is of further escalation of geopolitical tension in middle east.
